Workshop: Presenting research posters in English

Online-Angebot (über ZOOM)

Dozentin: Dr. Marie Vanderbeke (Professional School of Education, RUB)

Datum: 31.08.2021

Zeitraum: von 9:00 Uhr bis 14:00 Uhr

Description

Research posters are an essential part of most scientific conferences and often present an opportunity for early career researchers to showcase their studies and findings. An effective research poster visualizes important concepts, highlights study results and invites discussion. Although posters should be as self-explanatory as possible, they are often introduced by a (very) brief oral presentation. Furthermore, presenters should be able to supplement information in poster discussions.

In this workshop we will therefore focus on presenting research findings in the field of educational sciences in English, revising and consolidating specialist terms and improving presentation skills with particular reference to poster presentations and discussions at international conferences. More specifically, we're going to:

- discuss difficulties in communicating research findings in English (orally and in written form)
- look at the interplay between the research poster and an oral presentation
- clarify main messages and objectives in an oral presentation
- focus on the structure of oral presentations
- practice short presentations with regard to fluency, pronunciation, grammatical accuracy as well as general impact
- simulate discussions with other experts in the field of education

To use workshop time effectively, please prepare a research poster in English beforehand and send it to marie.vanderbeke@rub.de until 30 August 2021 (12 p.m.). We will use your posters to discuss difficulties in translation and practice the oral presentations.

This workshop will not discuss the key principals of poster design or layout. If you are interested in learning about basic poster design, please attend Ms Werner's workshop on 23 August 2021.
